

Appendix

The table below lists questions posed during the planning workshop and responses from stakeholders and community members regarding preferences on resilience hub planning, design, and resourcing. Researchers recorded and transcribed all responses during this verbal discussion.

Table A1. Planning Workshop Questions and Responses

Questions	Responses
What would you want in the resilience hub?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Designated building;</li> <li>● Greenhouse;</li> <li>● Community gardens;</li> <li>● Emergency kits;</li> <li>● First aid;</li> <li>● Automated External Defibrillator (AED);</li> <li>● Generator;</li> <li>● Oil lanterns;</li> <li>● Meals; Canned goods;</li> <li>● Seating area(s) including outdoors;</li> <li>● Water filtration system;</li> <li>● Heaters;</li> <li>● Preventative health classes;</li> <li>● Showers, Cots, Cooking equipment;</li> <li>● Entertainment (games and musical instruments);</li> <li>● Charging stations;</li> <li>● Cultural resources training (e.g., pottery wheel);</li> <li>● Heritage preservation (e.g., art);</li> <li>● Open space areas around the hub;</li> <li>● Access ramps</li> </ul>
How should community needs be assessed and addressed?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Postcard surveys;</li> <li>● Wellness checks;</li> <li>● Transportation of elderly/sick to and from emergency shelter and health appointments</li> </ul>

Appendix for Palma, J., Baker, H., & Hutton N. (2024). Planning a Resilience Hub With a Tribal Government in Virginia: Co-Producing the Hub Planning Process and Resource Guides. (Natural Hazards Center Public Health Community Engagement Brief Series, Brief 4). Natural Hazards Center, University of Colorado Boulder. <https://hazards.colorado.edu/public-health-disaster-research/planning-a-resilience-hub-with-a-tribal-government-in-virginia>

How can local and distant citizens be included?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Monthly newsletters with health information;</li> <li>● Website/Citizen Portal updates;</li> <li>● Community outreach and cultural programs;</li> <li>● Hotline hosted with state entity;</li> <li>● Emergency magnets</li> </ul>
How would you recommend obtaining the resources for a resilience hub?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● State/Federal funding;</li> <li>● Grants;</li> <li>● Partnerships with businesses (e.g., engineers and power utility) willing to donate time and tools, such as Computer-Aided Design</li> </ul>
How should community capacity be assessed and addressed?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Institutional knowledge;</li> <li>● Diaspora engagement;</li> <li>● By exploring additional options for staffing and funding availability/eligibility</li> </ul>
How can best practices shared in the Story Map be adapted, shared, and integrated to fit the needs of your community?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Focus on individual resilience, particularly of traditional knowledge holders and vulnerable populations, as well as emergency sheltering and reservation-specific resource sustainability, such as fish hatchery function;</li> <li>● Through adaptable building utilization starting with what is available and progressing to what is safe for major hazards;</li> <li>● Hand out preparedness backpacks;</li> <li>● Share resilience tools;</li> <li>● Website with library of resilience resources;</li> <li>● Manual and checklist for resilience hub best practices and maintenance;</li> <li>● Continuity planning;</li> </ul>

Appendix for Palma, J., Baker, H., & Hutton N. (2024). Planning a Resilience Hub With a Tribal Government in Virginia: Co-Producing the Hub Planning Process and Resource Guides. (Natural Hazards Center Public Health Community Engagement Brief Series, Brief 4). Natural Hazards Center, University of Colorado Boulder. <https://hazards.colorado.edu/public-health-disaster-research/planning-a-resilience-hub-with-a-tribal-government-in-virginia>

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● Council to develop week by week standard operating procedures and contact list;</li> <li>● Provide a place that is fun for young people to come to and get jobs</li> </ul>
How can the resilience hub and its planning process be adapted to address other action items identified during the initial resilience assessment?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>● By utilizing the resilience hub for other needs and services when not in ‘emergency use’;</li> <li>● Develop a framework of how to bring in experts;</li> <li>● Complement Housing and Urban Development housing rehabilitation efforts;</li> <li>● Red Cross;</li> <li>● Turn the Planning Committee into a committee to implement the hub;</li> <li>● Engage local fire department in closest proximity;</li> <li>● Coordinate access to Certified Nursing Assistants for eldercare with nearby tribal nations</li> </ul>

Appendix for Palma, J., Baker, H., & Hutton N. (2024). Planning a Resilience Hub With a Tribal Government in Virginia: Co-Producing the Hub Planning Process and Resource Guides. (Natural Hazards Center Public Health Community Engagement Brief Series, Brief 4). Natural Hazards Center, University of Colorado Boulder. <https://hazards.colorado.edu/public-health-disaster-research/planning-a-resilience-hub-with-a-tribal-government-in-virginia>